IN DEPORTATION PROCEEDINGS

APPEAL

ON BEHALF OF RESPONDENT: Robert B. Jobe, Esquire

CHARGE:

Order: Sec. 241(a)(1)(B), I&N Act [8 U.S.C. § 1251(a)(1)(B)] -
Entered without inspection

APPLICATION: Adjustment of status

ORDER:

PER CURIAM. This case is presently before us pursuant to the (b) (6) decision of the United States Court of Appeals for the (b) (6). In its decision, the court found that the Board erroneously affirmed the Immigration Judge's denial of a waiver under section 212(h) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C § 1182(h), whereas in fact the Immigration Judge found that the respondent did not require a section 212(h) waiver. The court remanded the case for the Board to consider whether the respondent is deserving of adjustment of status as a matter of discretion.

We note initially that although the court stated that we did not discuss the merits of the respondent's adjustment application, in fact, the second two paragraphs of our three-paragraph decision related to that issue, and we specifically found that the Immigration Judge had not abused his discretion in denying adjustment. We note in this regard that the Immigration Judge issued a lengthy and thoughtful decision regarding the discretionary aspects of this case, which fully recognized the respondent's equities. That decision, however, is now 4 years old. The Immigration Judge discussed the respondent's efforts at rehabilitation, including his participation in an alcohol management program. As noted by the Immigration Judge, at the time of the September 9, 1999, hearing, the respondent had completed 147 out of 548 days of the program.

(b) (6)

In view of the importance of rehabilitation in this case, as well as in light of the court's comments regarding the discretionary aspects of the respondent's case, we find that a remand to update the record regarding the respondent's more recent activities is the most appropriate course at this point. Accordingly, the record is remanded to the Immigration Judge for further proceedings consistent with this decision.
